DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 10-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Okumura [JP 04-155907] in view of Benko et al. [US 3,464,043].

Okumura discloses a transformer [10, figure 1] comprising:

- a magnetic core [12] formed of a plurality of amorphous metal laminations;
- a primary winding [16a] wound about the magnetic core; and
- a secondary winding [18] wound about the primary winding.

Okumura discloses the instant claimed invention except for specific material of the windings.

Benko et al. discloses a transformer [figure 2] comprising:

- a laminated magnetic core [10];
- a copper winding [16] wound about the magnetic core; and
- an aluminum winding [21/22] wound about the copper winding.

Benko et al. inherently discloses that an amount of heat generated by a current flowing through copper winding is greater than an amount of heat generated by a current flowing through the aluminum, so that the heat generated from the copper winding is dissipated in the magnetic core and in the aluminum winding since copper has better heat/electric conductivity than that of aluminum.

Benko et al. also inherently discloses a value of current density of the copper winding is greater than a value of current density of the aluminum winding since copper has better electric conductivity than aluminum.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to form the primary winding of copper and the secondary winding of aluminum for the windings of Okumura, as suggested by Benko et al., for the purpose of controlling the temperature of the device.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 10-11 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.

Art Unit: 2832
